The 2025 Lunar Month Panchang

The 2025 Lunar Month Panchang is a collaborative effort by the Australian Council of Hindu Clergy (ACHC) in partnership with Hindu Organizations, Temples, and Associations (HOTA). This panchang is tailored to suit Australian Eastern Standard Time (AEST), aligned with the 150° East longitude, and is applicable to all regions observing this time zone. The initiative aims to foster unity within the Hindu community by standardizing the dates for major festivals.

Panchang Creators

The Panchang is meticulously prepared by Shri Neti Siva Rama Krishna Shastri ji in collaboration with the Aapla Calendar publication and approved by the organizations listed below, ensuring both accuracy and authenticity.

Understanding the Panchang

The Hindu Panchang divides the sky into 27-star clusters (Nakshatras) within 12 Rasis (zodiac signs), following the Sidereal Zodiac system (known as Samsumara Chakram or Kalapurusha Chakram in Sanskrit). Unlike modern astronomy, where the Sun is considered a star, Hindu astrology categorizes it as one of the seven key planets. While most celestial bodies move clockwise, Rahu and Ketu, the shadow planets move counterclockwise. Ancient sages discovered how planetary movements influence earthly events and used this knowledge to determine auspicious and inauspicious times, forming the foundation of the Panchangam. The term Panchangam means "five limbs," referring to its key components:

Tithi (lunar day), Vara (weekday), Nakshatra (star), Yoga and Karana

Calculation Methods

Two primary methods are used in Panchangam calculations:

Surya Siddhanta: An ancient approach that lost precision over time due to natural astronomical changes.

Drik Siddhanta: A modern, astronomy-based method that allows verification of planetary positions using telescopic observations.

The 2025 Lunar Panchang employs the Drik Ganitha (Drik Siddhanta) method, combined with the Chaitra Paksha Ayanamsa - a standard recommended by the Calendar Reform Committee of India and international astrological organizations.

Astronomical Accuracy

Modern computing enables daily calculation of Ayanamsa (the shift between the vernal equinox and diurnal equinox). The Panchang's geocentric planetary positions are derived from Kepler's equation of planetary motion, ensuring precise sidereal positions.

Tithi Classifications

Nitya Tithi: Spans sunrise; used in rituals like Sandhya Vandana and Homa.

Parva Tithi: Determines festival timings based on specific parts of the day (e.g., midday for Rama Navami, midnight for Maha Shivaratri).

Pitru Tithi: Used for ancestral rites during the Aparahna period.

Regional Adaptations

The Panchang is calculated for AEST (and AEDT), with sunrise and sunset times specifically provided for Sydney and Melbourne. Adjustments may be required for other locations within the time zone.

Festival Guidelines

Key rules for declaring festivals:

- Nitya Tithi: Must be present at sunrise.
- Madhyahna Vyapini: Relevant for festivals like Rama Navami.
- Niseedhi Vyapini: Required for events like Janmashtami (midnight).

Significant Dates and Clarifications

Makara Sankranti: 14 January, marking Uttarayanam.

Karkataka Sankranti: 17 July, marking Dakshinayanam.

Sukra Asta: 30 November 2025 to 13 February 2026 (76 days).

Guru Asta: 10 June 2025 to 08 July 2025 (29 days)

Lunar Eclipses Visible in Australian Eastern Time Zone

- Total Eclipse: 14 March AEDT
Partial Start 16:09 (not visible) Partial End 19:48 (this phase is visible)
- Total Eclipse: 8 Sept AEST
Partial Start 02:27 Total Start 03:30 Total End 04:53 Partial End 05:57

Festival Categorization

Vinayaka Chaturthi: Madhyahna Vyapini

Deepavali: Pradosha Vyapini

Krishna Ashtami:

Smarthas: Niseedhi Vyapini (midnight).

Vaishnavas: Rohini Nakshatra Vyapini.
